CKF Inc. COVID 19 Update

During these most challenging times, CKF Inc. is taking its responsibility for the community very seriously. Our role during this outbreak is to continue with our mission of sustainably and safely providing our most essential products, to our food processing, retail grocery, and institutional customers.

We will continue to manufacture and provide these essential products, and in doing so will prioritize our duty of care- specifically the safety and health of our employees and customers alike.

The Senior Management team meets daily to assure it is meeting the above goals.

Our focus is as follows:

- Our employees are receiving ongoing briefings and operating protocols
- We have implemented travel restrictions (inter plant, business travel, etc.)
- We have implemented twice per day cleaning protocols at our facilities with particular focus on high traffic, high contact areas.
- We have reduced the number of meetings and practice social distancing
- We have staggered breaks to reduce the number of employees in the lunch room areas
- We are screening all approved visitors, vendors and contractors.
- We have hand sanitizer available for our employees.
- We have plans to assist our employees and are prepared to act quickly in the event we have knowledge of a possible COVID-19 case in one of our facilities

CKF Inc. food packaging products manufactured in our 5 plant locations across the country, serve a critical and essential need in the following areas of the food supply chain.

Specifically:

Egg cartons -for North America egg producer/farmers and packers

Meat Trays- for North American grocery stores and packers/ processors

Produce trays and containers- for North American growers and packers

Institutional Food Serving Trays- for Seniors Homes

Food and drink take out containers and trays- to support the restaurant industry, during this most difficult time.

We wanted you to know what we do and the duty of care we assume, while providing essential food packaging to our customers.
